The following members were present: Misses Sadie Breslin, Marion Giddings, Edith Appleby, Anna Harmon, Katie Slater, Charles J. Pitt, R. T. Bricker, Leroy Willett, C. N. Phelps, George F. E. Chase, and Harold Helbig.

Gordon-Metz Nuptials.

A wedding of much interest took place Wednesday night at the Church of the Reformation, when Miss Florence I. Metz and Charles A. Gordon were married in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives. Miss Gertrude Jenkins, of Strasburg, Va., was maid of honor, and Ernest Guard, of Washington, was best man. The ushers were John W. Sherwood, Dickinson Hoover, J. Raymond Padgett, and Herbert Mammal. A reception was held after the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, where only relatives and intimate friends were present. Mr. and Mrs. Gordon left the city later for a short trip North. They will make their future home in Pine Bluff, Ark., where Mr. Gordon's business is located.

Reception to Pastor.

The reception given to the Rev. John Wedley, pastor of the Church of the Reformation, and his wife, by members of the congregation, was a very pleasant affair. The reception was held in the lecture room of the church, and the guests were introduced by I. C. Slater. The room was profusely decorated with plants and flowers, and refreshments were served. Mrs. M. E. Dodge, Mrs. J. A. Sutherland, Mrs. Amelia Kahler, and Mrs. J. C. Hesse composed the committee having the affair in charge. Mrs. George Field and Mrs. Annie Hinkle were in charge of the decoration and refreshments.

The following guests attended: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Parsons, Mrs. Sophia Parsons, Miss Lulu McNally, Miss Amelia Metz, Mr. and Mrs. Mengel, Miss Julia Madel, Miss Minna Madel, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Kirby, Mr. and Mrs. William Koch, Mrs. L. A program of entertainment is being prepared and a number of speakers have been engaged to deliver addresses. The Ladies' Relief Corps will take part in entertaining.

Central office Detectives Flather, Hartigan, and Baur returned Thursday from a fishing trip at Dickinson, Md. Fishing, however, was not especially good, but all three of the party managed to get hold of enough fish for their meals.

"I never tasted better food than they gave us up there," said Detective Flather, "and we had a fine time, even if the fish were not biting very lively."

Ready's Valued Horse.

Mounted Policeman "Mike" Ready, of the Anacostia station, is the owner of one of the finest horses in the department. The animal in named Prince Turner, "the famous Prince Henry." Ready will tell you, and he seems to know that he has a royal name, for he holds his head without a check rein, and no horse has ever passed him on the road.

dense woods. Although an attempt is made to light the road, it is very dark in some places, and colored people in the section often cause considerable trouble.

"It takes a sure-footed animal to travel this road on a dark night, and Prince is one horse in a million for the job," said Ready. "I feel just as safe on Prince's back along this road on a dark night as if I was in the most brilliantly lighted part of the city."

"Sometimes people want to buy him, and come to me and ask how much cash I'll take for him. But Prince is not the kind of a horse that money can buy; that is, unless I got my price. I guess there isn't anyone who would pay it."

Flather Has a Birthday.

Detective Carl Flather, of the Central office, celebrated his forty-sixth birthday last week. In point of service, Flather is one of the veterans on the force, and also one of the most popular men at headquarters. Police Chief at Convention.

Major Richard Sylvester, superintendent of police, last week attended the annual convention of the Ohio State Association of Police Chiefs at Youngstown, Ohio. He addressed the meeting on the finger-print method of identification.

Faster Than One Horse.

At 3 o'clock every afternoon the daily bulletins and orders are given out to the different precincts at the Central office. Bicycle policemen take turns coming for the orders, and while they are waiting, reminiscences frequently are exchanged. Here is a story one of the men told about Policeman McCarthy, who is said to have more humor than any man on the force.

McCarthy had arrested a chauffeur for speeding his machine, and when the automobile driver was arraigned in Police Court the following morning the judge asked the policeman:

"You say this man was driving twenty-five miles an hour. How do you know it?"

"Well, your honor, my speedometer registered twenty-five."

"That might be wrong. Was he going faster than a horse can run?"

"Your honor, he was going faster than two horses could run."

The chauffeur was fined $25.

The Parable of the Kitten.

Half a dozen detectives were standing in front of a police headquarters the other morning, watching a kitten that was playing with a mouse. The kitten had shaken the mouse until it was somewhat stupefied. Then it would let the mouse run a few feet, and just as it seemed to be out of reach of the cat's claws, the mouse would be caught again.

"That reminds me of a green policeman arresting a drunken man," said one of the detectives. "Instead of taking him to a box and sending him in a call for a patrol, he will march him through the streets, and see how much fuss he can make by doing it. Now, that cat had to play that mouse and shake it until a crowd was watching her before she killed it. I guess animals as well as persons, like notoriety."

Slam at Preachers.

An old colored woman wandered into the detectives' office, one day last week, and said she wanted to have her neighbor arrested. She said that she had been missing chickens from her back yard for some time past and believed that her male neighbor had stolen them.

"Why do you suspect him?" she was asked.

"'Cause I ain't s'ach 'bout it," she explained, "but he's a preacher of de gospel, an' one day I donated some of my chickens what I hab for 'dinner. Nex' day he come 'round an' sez: 'Yo' suah, dat was excellen' chicken. How yo' rais' dat kind?'"

"Den I knows trouble's brewin'. Nex' night two big birds missin' and two moh de nex'. 'Cause, as I sez, I ain't suah, but whar dey's a preachin' in de neighborhood, I's sp'icious."
